A Big Night Out with Fifteen featuring Jamie Oliver -13th March 2010

I am delighted to invite you to the first ever fundraiser event hosted by the Fifteen Foundation and founder Jamie Oliver – welcome to A Big Night Out with Fifteen - taking place at the National Gallery of Victoria on March 13th.

A Big Night out with Fifteen will be co-hosted by Jamie Oliver and Brian McFadden and will be a fabulous, fun-filled evening with lots of great ways for you to support the Fifteen Foundation. The aim is to raise much needed funds so they can continue their transformational work with disadvantaged youngsters in the local Melbourne community.

Jamie, Tobie Puttock and the Fifteen apprentices have designed an incredible 5 course dinner menu that they will be cooking to ensure you have a night to remember. There will be fantastic prizes to win; a live Grand Auction, great music and entertainment as well as a table of celebrity Chef's.

So far we've secured the venue, host, auctioneer and musical act. For the time being it all remains top secret so all you have to do is put the date in your diary, book your ticket and be sure that Jamie and the Fifteen crew will deliver a night like no other!

A reminder of what the Fifteen Foundation is all about

Fifteen was a concept set up by Jamie Oliver in London in 2002 and exists to inspire disadvantaged young people to believe that they can create for themselves great careers in the restaurant industry. Fifteen Restaurant in Melbourne opened in 2006 and is headed up by head chef Tobie Puttock (formerly Jamie's main man at Fifteen London) and helps up to 20 local Melbourne kids get back on track by offering them sustainable futures as chefs through a unique, tailored training programme.

Why we rely on fundraising support

Each pioneering apprenticeship scheme costs $60,000 to deliver. This funds a tailored programme of college and in-house training, welfare support and sourcing trips to top producers, just some of the things that make this course so unique and successful.

The Foundation needs to raise $1 million per year to continue their work and impact more young people in the local Melbourne community. A Big Night Out is one step in reaching this financial target. To find out more about Fifteen visit www.fifteenfoundation.org.au
